

The Janet Prindle Institute for Ethics at DePauw University invites applications for the position of Nancy Schaenen Endowed Visiting Scholar of Ethics and Assistant Director of Academic Services for the 2021-2022 academic year. This is a one-year position which may be renewed for a total of three years.

As the Schaenen Scholar, the successful candidate will teach 1-2 courses per academic year and will work on a research project of their choice. As the Assistant Director of Academic Services, the successful candidate will be a part of the core Prindle Institute Management Team and help guide and execute programming, particularly those areas of programming that relate to their areas of expertise.

We seek a scholar or artist with strong interest, expertise, and record of accomplishment and/or promise in ethics through the lens of any discipline. While we are looking for an excellent candidate that focuses on any area related to ethics, the Prindle Institute has an interest in candidates who specialize in philosophy/ethics of race, business ethics, ethics and leadership, philosophy/ethics for children, or bioethics. We are also particularly interested in candidates with a passion for engaging the general public in their areas of expertise.

Successful candidates will be passionate about the teaching and study of ethics in the liberal arts undergraduate curriculum, and will have a terminal degree in their field.

The Janet Prindle Institute for Ethics provides a compelling physical space and a distinctive forum for DePauw students, faculty, and staff that fosters ethics education, research, and dialogue. The Institute also has a national outreach mission to encourage everyone to think more deliberately about ethics and the critical issues of our time.

We hope the successful candidate gains at least two benefits: to have time and resources to work on their own research project and to develop the skills and understanding to either start an ethics center/program at their home institution or take on a leadership role at an existing ethics institute or center.

For more information, including key responsibilities, additional support, and application instructions, click here.

Review of applications will begin January 25, 2021 and continue until the position is filled.